HOME COURSE IN SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE

SIXTH ARTICLE — HOME FRUIT GARDEN.

By L. C. CORBETT, Horticulturist, Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture.

THE possibilities in fruit culture upon restricted areas have been very generally overlooked, with the result that many persons who own a city lot, a suburban home or even a farm now look upon fruit as a luxury. This can all be changed, and much of the land which is now practically waste and entirely unproductive can be made to produce fruits in sufficient quantity to give them a regular place upon the family bill of fare and at the same time add greatly to the attractiveness of the table and healthfulness of the diet.

WELL PRUNED AND WELL CULTIVATED ORCHARD.

Canada field peas, will accomplish the desired result. If the soil is loose and sandy, losing its store of plant food readily, this fault can be remedied by the addition of retentive material, such as clay. The amount of clay to be added must be governed by the degree of stiffness desired in the soil. If, on the other hand, the class of plants to be generally grown is suited to a loose, sandy soil and it seems desirable to add to the collection a plant, such as plum, which naturally requires a heavy, retentive soil, it would undoubtedly be better to change the character of the plant by grafting it upon a stock adapted to sandy soil conditions than to attempt to modify the soil to suit the plant.

Such modifications in plants are not always easily accomplished, and with many plants there is no alternate but to use them on their own roots. In this latter case the soil itself must be made to conform to the demands of the plants. The soil, in addition to being heavy and retentive, may also be cold and wet.

If the soil be unduly moist the only safe and satisfactory remedy lies in thorough underdrainage. This can be accomplished in two ways. Drains may be dug and a stone conduit built to allow the superfluous water to escape, or, what is better, agricultural tile may be laid in the bottom of the trench. If the soil is very stiff and retentive the tiles should not be laid over two and a half or three feet deep and about one foot apart. If the soil is porous the drains may be placed farther apart and buried deeper.

At planting time all broken or decayed roots should be cut away, leaving only smooth cut surfaces and healthy wood to come in contact with the soil. A large part of the root area of the plant has been lost in transplanting the top should be cut back in proportion to the roots remaining.

The holes in which trees, vines or shrubs are to be set should be ample so that the roots of the plant may have full spread without bending them out of their natural course. The earth at the bottom of the holes should be loosened a spade depth below the line of excavation. The soil placed immediately in contact with the roots of the newly set plant should be rich top soil, free from sod or partially decayed organic matter. Firm the soil over the roots by tramping, as this brings the soil particles together and at the same time in close contact with the surface of the roots. A movement of soil water is thus set up and the food supply of the soil brought immediately to the use of the plant. When the operation of transplanting is complete the plant should stand one or two inches deeper than it stood in the nursery.

In the case of the apple and the pear the fruits are borne upon "spurs" of the previous year's growth only, these spurs appearing on wood one year or more of age. Heading in or shortening each shoot of the season's growth, therefore, must be done with care in order not to reduce the bearing wood beyond a profitable limit. The bearing shoots are usually obscurely located upon the sides of the branches.

With the peach, however, it is the wood of the last season's growth upon which the fruits are directly borne, and with them heading in may be successfully employed to limit the quantity of fruit borne by the tree. Japanese plums bear on both year-old wood and spurs. Pruning may therefore be used to this fruit, the same as in the case of the peach.

The grape bears its fruit on shoots of the season, which in turn usually arise from canes of the previous year's growth. Old wood on the grape is therefore of little value; hence the development of so many systems of training which maintain only a single permanent trunk, from the top of which the bearing canes are renewed each year.

By planting the vines closely and carrying up single trunks to a fixed height and from the top of the stalk carrying out horizontal arms along which "spurs" are maintained a short growth from each spur will be sufficient to give a uniform and sufficiently dense canopy of leaves for the arbor.

Raspberries and blackberries both bear their fruits on short shoots which arise from canes of the previous season's growth.

In the case of the currant and gooseberry the fruits are produced on both old and new wood. The fruits appear as axillary growths from the shoot itself, and wood three years or more of age is unproductive and should be cut away.

Strawberries are rarely produced in profitable quantities by plants more than one year old. Plants over two years of age should be rooted out to give room for new ones.

The interest of a fruit garden may be greatly enhanced by growing there in plants not adapted naturally to the climatic region in which the garden is located. The most hardy sort should be selected, in addition to which the fruiting shoots may be wrapped in matting, covered with straw, and the fruits thus successfully protected, or, if it seems desirable, temporary sheds may be built over the plants and these thatched with straw or fodder sufficiently to protect them from frost. Then, again, semi-hardy sorts may be tipped over by cutting the roots on one side, bending the branches close to the soil, pinning them down and then covering the whole plant with matting and earth or a straw thatch and earth.

The fact that trees can be grown as dwarfs as well as standards will enable one to utilize a space which had previously been considered unsuited for the development of a tree. In proportion to size dwarf trees are more fruitful than standards, and they come into bearing sooner.

Dwarfing is accomplished by budding or grafting robust growers on slow growing stocks, and most tree fruits lend themselves to this treatment. Besides this method of modification, there are other methods quite as important to the owners of small areas. Standards may be grown as "bushes" or as "pyramids," thus making it possible to grow them much closer together. Pruning and training used in combination have shown the possibilities of restricting plants to the "espalier," "cordon" and other styles of training employed in growing fruits against walls. These methods not only allow plants to be grown more closely than is common in orchard practice, but they allow the grower to take advantage of locations and conditions under which trees could not develop normally.

Besides the advantage of dwarfing, grafting may be turned to good account to enable the owner of few trees to increase his sorts beyond the limits of the trees he possesses. There are single trees known which bear as many as 150 varieties of apples.

In addition to the advantages to be gained from restricting the growth of plants by training and dwarfing, some of the methods of training offer adaptations which allow of combining plants of various habits of growth to the advantage of the grower and with little or no disadvantage to the plants. To illustrate this, currants may be combined with grapes, apples with currants or raspberries, grapes and strawberries.

The advantages of these methods become apparent at once when the object is the most economical utilization of a limited land area.

Besides the special adaptations afforded by dwarfed trees and by special combinations of low growing and high growing plants, certain well known systems of pruning and training allow additional liberties to the skillful planter. The vine may be utilized as a cover for walks and drives or as a canopy over small outbuildings. A cozy summer veranda may be covered by grapevines, thus securing the double advantage of a cool, shady nook during summer and a supply of fruit in autumn.

Where there is more land at one's disposal there may be both a fruit garden and a vegetable garden.

For specific recommendations as to varieties of fruits adapted to the various fruit sections of the United States see farmers' bulletin No. 208, "Varieties of Fruits Recommended For Planting."

The Primary Law.

Following is an opinion on the Primary Election Law by Attorney General Garnett, in reply to numerous requests upon him for information:

"In the first place you ask us to interpret the clause which requires a voter to ask for either a democratic or republican ballot. Second, does this clause do away with independent voting? Third, is it possible for a democratic voter to write the name of a republican, who is seeking a nomination for office, in the blank space usually reserved on the democratic ballot, and have such vote counted as a vote for that name as a democratic nominee, or will it be counted as a republican vote?"

"In the first place the primary election law is designated for the sole purpose of nominating candidates of the dominant parties. By section 3, the nominating candidates by the political parties as hereinafter defined, is specifically provided. By section 5 of the act, a political party, within the meaning of the act, is defined to be an organization of voters and which at the last preceding Presidential election cast at least twenty per cent of the votes in the entire State. So the act applies only to regularly organized parties which cast twenty per cent of the votes in the last Presidential election and such parties are required to make their nomination in the primary.

"This act does not repeal the provisions of the old law, which provided for nominations by petitions only by conventions for the political parties not included in the provisions of the recent act.

Independent voters should not have a right, nor are they authorized by the law, to vote in the primary elections. Independent and other parties would have a perfect right to meet in convention or to take the sense of the independent voters in any way they please, and they thereby might endorse nominees of the regular party. The other than democratic, republican and progressive parties, are not restricted by this law to any particular method of making their nomination, nor are they limited to any particular time. So much for the question of independent voters. Section 19 of the act provides as follows:

"In addition to the special qualifications hereinafter provided the same qualifications of electors shall apply in primary elections held under this act as are now required in regular elections. Said qualifications shall be determined as of the date of the date of the primary, without regard to the qualifications or disqualifications as they may exist at the succeeding regular election. In precincts where registration is required no elector, except those entitled to be specially registered as hereinafter provided, shall be entitled to vote in any primary unless he is registered in the registration book of said precinct for the succeeding year, as affiliating with the party whose ballot he offers to vote. If not registered he shall not be entitled to vote the ballot of the party with which he is registered, and no other. In other precincts qualified electors shall be allowed to vote only the ballot of that party with which they declare their affiliation.

"Under this section, it will be clearly seen that in cities where registration is required, a person who is registered as a democrat, would not be entitled to and should not receive from the clerk other than a democratic ballot; likewise a person registered as a republican would not be entitled to and should not receive other than a republican ballot. In the counties and cities where registration is not required, this matter is not controlled, but it is provided the qualified electors shall be allowed to vote only the ballot of the party which they declare their affiliation. This will leave the selection of the nominees open to some abuses, because under it, a republican elector might declare his affiliation with the democratic party, receive a democratic ballot, and then vote for the weakest man on the ticket.

By a concerted action on the part of any great number of members of either the one or the other party, the weakest candidates of either the one or the other party might thereby be selected, but from the careful reading of the entire law, I see no way that this matter can be regulated or controlled or controlled unless it is left to the discretion and good judgment of the judges and I doubt then whether they would have the power to refuse a man a ballot on the simple grounds that they did not believe he affiliated with the party by his declaration.

"As to your last question, there is some doubt. Senator J. W. Eaton, who was the author of the bill, and it was he to whom I wrote on this particular question answered it in part by saying that the electors would be permitted to indicate their choice of selection by writing the name of any person they so choose upon the ballot and that the name as written would count as one vote for the person indicated.

"I do not agree with Senator Eaton on this construction of the law. In the first place I do not think it was the intention of the Legislature that there should be any blank space left on the ballot for the writing names. My belief in this view is somewhat borne out by the latter part of Section 17 of the act, which provides as follows:

"The ballot shall be printed so as to give each elector a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates for nomination by making with the stencil a cross in the square after the name of each candidate for whom he wishes to vote for nomination.

"If my construction of this section is correct—that is that the choice of each elector shall only be designated in the manner provided in Section 17—then the officers of the election would not be authorized to count as a valid vote for any person, whether for one party or the other, a name written on the ballot with pencil, or with pen and ink, as far as that is concerned.

"You can readily see how any other construction of this would lead to an abuse of the law, and to thwart the intention of the legislators in having a fair and full and free expression of the voters as to their choice of nominees. As indicated above, it would be a very easy matter, both in districts where registration is required, and in districts where registration is not required, upon the concerted action of either the members of the one or the other party to write the name of some democrat or republican on either the one or the other ballot, who would have no possible chance of winning at the final election.

"For example, in a primary election in Fayette county, upon an agreement by the members of the republican party that they should vote for John Smith, a democrat, by writing his name on the republican ticket, and it so happened that John Smith was a man of such character that he could not possibly win in the November election, there would be a clear defeat of the intention of this law, and we believe that the courts will hold that such action would not be permissible, because it would defeat the purposes of the act."

The Mexican government has refused to recognize the Chinese republic, saying it was too "unstable." Never mind, China, next week's Mexican government will be different.

Eleven Year Old Boy Suicides.

Fredrick, the eleven year-old son of D. B. Goodpaster, who lives on White's branch in the southwest part of the county, committed suicide April 30th, by hanging himself. The little fellow accidentally struck his little sister, still younger than himself, on the head with an ax in the afternoon of that day, inflicting a painful but not serious wound. He was sent to a neighbor's house near by to get some liniment to bathe the wound on the little girl's head, and after he returned he told some of the other boys that he intended to kill himself. He was last seen alive about 6 o'clock, and at about 10 o'clock that night was found hanging from a rafter in a shed of the barn with a plow line looped around his neck. There was an old bedstead standing in the shed near where the boy was hanging and the indications were that he had climbed upon the headboard of this bedstead, tied the rope to the beam above, looped it around his neck and then jumped off.

The child had not been punished for striking his sister, and his brooding over the accident is the only cause that can be given for his act.

Better Babies.

"How many babies in Kentucky can qualify under the rules adopted for the 'Better Babies' exhibit at the San Diego exposition?"

Another question is "How many mothers and fathers will be willing to have their babies judged by the same standards applied to prize animals with the single purpose of adopting some system that will produce better babies?"

Eugenics has been a popular fad, but in the end the term means simply "Better Babies," and this is the result sought by the proposed exhibit about which President D. C. Collier, of the San Diego Exposition, and Mrs. Gertrude B. Lane, of New York, are in correspondence.

Mrs. Lane proposes to hold a "Better Babies" contest, and is holding them, in every state in the Union. The San Diego Exposition has asked her to exhibit the results of these contests at San Diego, or to outline a plan whereby the exhibit can be made.

President Collier may decide to offer a big prize for the best baby less than three years old exhibited at the exposition during the year 1915, and is awaiting Mrs. Lane's suggestions with a good deal of interest.

Cutting Affray at White Oak.

On last Sunday a man by the name of Simpkins was cut and severely wounded, at the village of White Oak, by John Salyer, youngest son of Martin Salyer. Details of the affair were hard to get, but from the best information at hand Simpkins and Arnett Salyer, a nephew of John Salyer, were engaged in an altercation when he (John Salyer) stabbed Simpkins in the back. Rumor has it that the attack was premeditated—that the row between Arnett Salyer and Simpkins was started on purpose to give John a chance to use his knife. Up to the present we have not learned whether or not any arrests have been made.

Bryan's Mission Fails.

Secretary of State Bryan's mission to California to prevent, if possible, the passage of the alien land bill by the California legislature failed, as the bill was rushed through while he was there. Japan is protesting against the bill, claiming that it is in violation of the terms of the treaty between the two nations. Japan has notified the United States that she will hold this country responsible for California's acts in the matter, and some uneasiness is felt over the situation.

144,000 Free Meals

For The Veterans.

In commemoration of the bloody battle at Chickamauga 50 years ago, Chattanooga announces perfection of the plans for entertainment of the United Confederate Veterans and the Sons who will hold their 23rd annual Reunion May 27-29. High officials of the G. A. R. state that Chattanooga's expenditures for entertainment and amusement, etc., will be on a more lavish scale than was ever necessary for their meetings, even surpassing the high water mark at Los Angeles. In is expected in Chattanooga that upward of 12,000 veterans will be present, all of whom will be tendered free lodging and meals at Camp Alexander P. Stewart. Some fellow with a love for statistics has figured that this means the service of 144,000 free meals in course of four days. The requisite number of Government tents and cots have been loaned by the War Department. The year 1913 will perhaps mark the last pilgrimage of most of the veterans of 1863 to ground made sacred by the heroes of the Blue and Gray on the heights and in the shadow of Lookout Mountain.

Appointed Director.

Our townsman, Henry M. Cox, has been honored by the "Kentucky Association of Perry Centennial Celebration," as shown by the following letter which is self-explanatory:

Louisville, Ky., April 26, 1913.
Mr. Henry M. Cox,
West Liberty, Ky.

My Dear Sir:—I have the honor to announce that you have been designated as an Associate Director of this Association, which has charge of the mammoth celebration of the Centennial Anniversary of the various events of the War of 1912, in which Kentuckians served with great distinction. The enclosed booklet will indicate in a small degree the part Kentucky played in that war, as well as indicating to some extent the scope of the celebration to be held in Louisville. This celebration, however, is essentially an all Kentucky celebration, in which all Kentuckians should take equal pride and for that reason Associate Directors have been selected from among our foremost citizens to lend aid and advice to the movement.

Conveying the very hearty wish of the local directors that you will accept this appointment, I am Very truly yours,
DENNY B. GOODE, Sec.

Advertising Talk.

The effect of an advertisement is not always immediately apparent, and for that reason many get discouraged in their advertising campaigns. The purchaser whom your ad begets you seldom tells you of the fact. Maybe he read your ad months ago, at a time when he did not need the article, and is not fully conscious that it is the impression that the reading of the ad made upon him that caused him to go to you when he did need it. The constant advertiser, the man who keeps the fact that he is in business constantly in the public eye is the man who reaps rich rewards from advertising.

Hitting The Trail.

Chas. D. Arnett and Jas. H. Sebastian, candidates for Senator and Representative, respectively, mounted their chargers and started for Campton, Sunday. The Wolfe Circuit Court began Monday and Jim and Charley intended to make the hand of many a Wolfe county democrat sore on that day, which they doubtless did, as they are both experts at the game. Mr. Arnett has no opposition as yet, unless it developed the first of this week.

Mostly people use Dr. Miller's Laxative Tablets because they are mild.

Base Ball.

Two games of ball with Cannel City were played on the local diamond Saturday. In the forenoon the game was between the Stacy Fork Second team and our Third school nine, and resulted in a score of 14 to 10 in favor of the visitors.

In the afternoon the game was between the First teams of West Liberty and Cannel City and resulted in a victory for West Liberty by a score of 7 to 6. We were not furnished with the lineup in either game and can give only the general results.

On Monday one of the best games of the season was played here between West Liberty and Hazel Green, with the usual result, West Liberty winning. A few errors on both sides run the score up, but in the main it was a snappy, well played game.

Following is the lineup and score by innings:

DON'TS

Don't sprinkle salt on the tail of temptation.

Don't try to get the better of a man when he hasn't any.

Don't be satisfied to pay as you go. Save enough to come back.

Don't snore in church. It's mean of you to keep others awake.

Don't get married with the sole idea that misery loves company.

Don't follow the beaten track unless you are satisfied to remain beaten.

Don't accept advice from any man who never offers you nothing else.

Don't expect Opportunity to come to you with a letter of introduction.

Don't trust to luck. Nine tenths of the people in the world guess wrong.

Don't buy your friends. They never last as long as those you make yourself.

Don't envy the rise of others. Many a man who gets to the top is mere froth.

Don't greet Misfortune with a smile unless you are prepared for a onesided flirtation.

Don't make good resolutions unless you constantly carry a repair kit with you.

Don't place too much confidence in appearances. Many a man with a red nose is white all the way through.

Don't fail to have an object in view. Many a man leads such an aimless existence that he could fire at random without hitting it.—Lippincott's.

A Literary Curiosity.

Sator arepo tenet opera rotas. This is curious because it spells the same words backward as forward; the first letter of each word placed consecutively, spells the first word; the second letter spells the second word, and so on.

The last words read backward and spell the last word; and the next to the last letters spell the next to the last word and so on throughout.

There are also many letters in each word as there are words in the sentence.—Ex.

Oratorical Contest.

The West Liberty High School will compete with other Kentucky schools for oratorical honors at Lexington May 16. Byron Cisco and Bernard Whitt have been chosen to represent our school.

LICKING VALLEY COURIER.
Issued Thursday by
The Morgan County Publishing Co.
Terms—One Dollar a year in advance.
All communications should be addressed to the Editor.
Entered as second class matter
April 7, 1910, at the post-office at West Liberty, Ky., under the Act of March 3, 1879.
H. G. COTTE, Editor.

No man has the right to do an act that prevents his neighbor from succeeding.

President Wilson is not running things with a high hand but he sure has a firm grip on the situation.

If any candidate is not satisfied with the way the straw vote is going up it might be well for him to get out and do a little hustling.

The time never has been when the farmers are enjoying such golden opportunities as at present, and yet many of them are failing to make the most of them.

A habit, good or bad, once firmly fixed is hard to break; therefore it is well to form the habit early in life of buying from the merchant who advertises.
You want to break this habit when you get old.

An old saw has it that the constant dripping of the water will wear away the stone. We are testing out that theory.
Week by week we have been, in the name of the citizens, calling for a published statement of the finances of the town. It takes a lot of patience, but we are still on the job, and we keep asking the question: "What becomes of the tax money."

Mr. Candidate, if you want to let the voters know why you are expecting their support, and the reasons why you feel that they should support you, the columns of the COURIER afford you an excellent means. We will sell you as much or as little space as you think your needs require.
The sooner you do this the better, for the time when the voters make up their mind is at hand.

Anent the sidewalk question, some one asked us if we really had any hope that the board of trustees would do anything to cause the building of sidewalks.
We were compelled to answer that we had not; that time after time they had "ordered" them built, but that no steps had been taken to enforce the ordinances, and that the citizens had come to believe that they could build, or not build, just as they choose.
It will require a "showing" to convince us that they mean business. We're from Missouri.

Now that the smoke of the battle of the school election has cleared away, the work of preparing for the divorce of the graded and high school should begin. The COURIER suggest that the county be sold a site on the graded school lot to build its house upon, and that the campus be used jointly by two schools. It would be rank-follly for the district to sell out the entire property to the county. The present building, while possibly the worst arranged school building in the State, is large enough to accommodate the graded school, and can if the district ever wants to have it done, be remodeled and made a good building. The county is able to build a good high school building and will have to do so. So let's sit tight and hold to the idea of separate schools.

Another year has come and gone and yet there is no organized "boys corn club" in Morgan county. And for what reason? Has there been no definite action taken nor no concerted effort on the part of those who could have pre-fected or materially assisted in perfecting the organization? Why are we behind other counties in this respect? A blind man can see the good that would result therefrom. The strangest thing about it all is that the farmers themselves, the ones who ought to be most interested—assuredly the ones who would be most benefited—have not taken the matter up among themselves and organized their boys into clubs for the purpose of better preparing them to till the soil. But in this case it looks like the boy will have to be father to the man, but he must have a leader. Why not the Farmer's Educational and Co-operative Union take up the work?

LET US HOPE.

Before this article is seen by the Courier readers the Graded School election for district No. 1, Morgan county will be over.
The result thereof will be a matter of history. This article is penned in the hope that all will end well, and whatever the result of the election the writer, as an individual, will be affected least of all. He has labored unselfishly to build up a school at West Liberty that would be second to none in the mountains. He has given freely of his time, his means and his newspaper space, the latter of which is his stock in trade, in this behalf with what result let future generations tell.
He has cooperated heartily, where cooperation was possible, with every influence and every movement which made for the upbuilding and the betterment of the West Liberty High School.
Cooperation was not always possible from the fact that certain influences controlled by well meaning but misguided people stood squarely in the way and thwarted every effort of a man, who would be honest with himself and with all the world, to do the good which otherwise in his power lay. When we were doing our very best and bending every effort to forget the indignities previously heaped upon us by the churches, and trying to build up the school despite the sinister influences which controlled it at that time, we were beset upon by a prurient little preacher, a parody on God's masterpiece, who had been selected by the sectarian management of the school, to deliver something, the Devil knows what, to somebody, God knows who, at the close of the 1910 session of the school, and given such a castigation as never man of our circumscribed circle of operations was the recipient of before.
It was so eloquent and clothed in such well chosen language that even those who had previously been our friends and for whom we had gone out of the beaten path to favor and advance their interests, joined with the omnium gathrum, who took fiendish delight in listening to opprobriums heaped upon the editor of the Courier, in vociferous applause.

But the offenders have never forgiven the offender for the wrong they did him. He's been too stubborn, they say; he refuses to kiss the feet that kicked him and trampled upon, what they thought to be his totally helpless body.

But let's get back to the subject. We (or I) intend to vote, and when you read this will have voted, for what?—I, from the depths of heart that is both fearless and conscientious, believe to be for the best interests of the children of Graded Common School District No. 1, and of the West Liberty High School. In doing this I will perhaps vote for (or at least with) those who have persistently antagonized me in my fight against the wrongs done me by the churches of this town several years ago. Why do (or did) you do this, you may ask: Because I love the children that are and the children that will be, more than I hate your damnable hypocrisy, or the petty orthodoxy and contemptible narrowness that prompted you to try to crush me beneath your feet, deprive me of the means of earning an onest livelihood and rob my child of her daily bread.

Call my action what you may, just so you don't call it coward-dice. It takes (or took) more manhood and more courage than has been displayed by every church member in West Liberty since the band of pioneers gathered on the bank of the Licking river and organized the town and more than will be displayed within the next hundred years.

I am not tooting my own horn.
I am merely making a comprison and telling the plain unvarnished truth. I have surrendered no principle in my action in this school election. Who of you who have denied me the privilege of entering your churches can say as much? From the empty void of echoless air no answer comes.
I sought to avoid making this affair between myself and the churches, and at one time the school, a personal affair. Useless! Personalities were drawn into it. With what result? Let the present and the future answer.

Someone will doubtless ask:
What do you hope to gain by your present attitude? For myself nothing, for others much. I hope by acting independently of all extraneous influences and as-side from selfish motives to see the school at West Liberty put upon a firm business like basis, neither ruled by sectarianism, selfishness nor partisanship.
Upon what grounds do I base this hope? Upon the fact that the clans are no longer united.
The old coalition is somewhat broken. The Methodist church and the Christian church of this place were never united until they had to march together in order to quell a powerful foe that threatened to destroy the social, moral and religious institutions of the town. A little coterie of Methodists gathered in their church, were, resolute and shed big briny tears until they bethought themselves that they had better invoke the aid of the Campbellites 'ere the dragon had gotten the entire town in his coils. They hid themselves hither where their erstwhile religious foe happened to be assembled for worship. The Chairmaness of their indignation Committee read the resolutions they had adopted. What then? The Campbellites, thirsty for blood and secure behind their bulwarks took up the fight. But what's the use to descend further? Briefly, I and others with me, were indicted, tried, convicted and executed socially and religiously, worlds without end, without once being informed that we were accused of any wrong—never once being given a chance to offer an explanation, ask a question or introduce a witness.

But that affair, which is not dead nor can ever die, shall not stand in my way when it comes to working for the interest of the school. Whatever criticism I have heretofore offered was done because I saw that the children of this community were not getting that to which they were justly and lawfully entitled. It matters not who is at the helm of the school this and succeeding years I will criticize as freely and fearlessly if criticism is deserved.
But my action in the school election this year was taken solely with the hope that the management of the school would be put upon so high a plane that there would be nothing to criticize. I would far rather commend than condemn, and for this reason I lost my identity for the time being and joined forces with those who have wronged and still wrong me, well knowing that my wrongs have come to stay, but hoping and believing that the welfare of the children of this town would be better subserved by my action.

FOREST NURSERIES

Two nurseries for the growth of forest tree seedlings and transplants will be started in the near future, one near Frankfort, and the other on 25 acres of land belonging to the State Fair at Louisville. The State Board of Forestry at its quarterly meeting on April 21 made arrangements to undertake this work.
It will cost about $750 each to establish the nurseries and the stock from them will be furnished to the people of the State at cost in order to encourage the reforestation of cut-over areas and waste lands. These nurseries are projects which will be of benefit to the people of the State and within a very short time will be self-supporting.

The crack of doom has already sounded a great many times.

FRUITS COULD BE KENTUCKY GROWN

$17,000,000 Spent Outside State Each Year.
SHOULD GROW THEM HERE.

Schools Are Striving to Help Solve Problems That Will Confront Our Children—Useless to Talk to Older Farmers—Boys' Corn Clubs Point
Way to Success.

It is estimated that there are 9,000-000 apple trees of bearing age in Kentucky at the present writing. Our annual crop from these trees is something like 3,000,000 bushels of inferior quality. We spend $17,000,000 for fruits of all kinds that could be grown in Kentucky.

It is useless to talk to many of the older farmers, for they will tell you:

ROOT GRAFTING.

"Oh, yes; when I was a boy you could raise all the fruit you wanted to. But now—well, I reckon it's just run out." It must be the new generation with which we deal if we are to save this annual expenditure of $17,000,000 some time in the future. We cannot go out to every farmhouse in the state and have a chat with the farmer and his boys and girls, so we must find a way to teach them easily and effectively.
The Boys' Corn clubs point the way to success. They have been made possible by the co-operation of teachers everywhere in the country, and the same is possible in fruit culture. At one of our normal schools numbers of the young people who are training for teachers are getting ready for this new crusade.

Almost any afternoon this spring in the basement of one of the big buildings, tables littered with roots of various apple trees, twigs from standard varieties, thread, wired tags and knives might have been seen.

As rapidly as deft fingers cut roots and twigs to fit snug, they were wound with thread and placed in small bundles. These bundles of ten, fifteen or twenty-five tiny trees were then sent to the country by parcel post.
These trees were to be planted in the home gardens of the pupil teachers and carefully cultivated for a year before being set out permanently.
That the interest in this real vital work of education is growing is shown by the fact that the number of trees

TWENTY-FIVE JONATHANS READY TO SEND OUT.

mailed to the homes of the students this spring will be about five times as great as it was two years ago.
The first year the work was inaugurated 4,000 trees were grafted, last year 8,000 and this year about 20,000 will go on their mission of education.
With such work being done by teachers here and there over the state the children are sure to see a new vision of Kentucky as a fruit state.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Because it's Welded, you can take it Down and Put it Up Without Injuring the Fence

That's a good point to consider.
Many a time you would shift a line of fencing from, say, the bull pasture to the hog lot—if it didn't destroy the efficiency of the fence.
In "Pittsburgh Perfect", the only fence with electrically welded joints, the stays are permanently joined to the line wires.

It is actually a one-piece fence.
Taking down "Pittsburgh Perfect" and re-stringing it doesn't hurt it a bit. This is one exclusive "Pittsburgh Perfect" feature of economy perhaps you haven't thought of. Our catalogue, sent free,

Life's Best Gift.

Savants have searched the dusty tomes of the ancients and delved into the experience of the present in the effort to solve the riddle of what is life's best gift. And strange to say they have not agreed. In fact, the individual can not decide this for himself. The decision must be made in advance of his advent into the sphere of life's activities. It must be decided by his progenitors, both immediate and remote. And the more remote the decision for good the better for the individual who is to receive the gift.

To be well born is life's best gift. And to be well born does not mean to be well born to wealth and luxury; neither does it mean to be born of illustrious lineage. It means that he who inherits, through many generations back, health, character and intelligence has been given the best that can be given to man. It being obvious that to be well born is to receive life's best gift, let us go deeper into the matter and study it, not to get the gift ourselves—we can not control that—but to give to future generations this priceless gift.

To fully grasp the significance of this we must look to the basic truths that control. Man is not what he would, but what he must be. The most pernicious doctrine that was ever stuffed into the minds of the people is that man controls his own destiny and decides his own status in life. What you and I are, and will be, was decided for us generations before we were born. Not consciously and by purposeful plans of our ancestors, but by their cumulative acts, acts done without thought as to their effect upon posterity. The Baptists and the Presbyterians have only the exoteric of the theory of predestination. The esoteric of it lies in the immutable laws of nature. It is fixed and unchangeable. Man's destiny—his life, his career, his chances to succeed—is predestined; is decided in advance for him—not by decree of Omnipotence in the beginning, but by the mental, moral and physical condition and acts of his ancestors. I am not seeking to provoke a theological discussion. I am merely stating facts.

Man is a creature of heredity. His life may be, to some extent, modified by environment, but the mental and moral tendencies he inherits predominate. Heredity includes the extraneous characteristics woven into the life from pre-natal influences.

Physical likeness, mental power or lack of mental power, and moral characteristics are transmitted from parent to child by as fixed a law as that which controls the reproduction of the plants. Figs do not grow on thistles. Each race transmits its racial characteristics on down through posterity generation after generation just as families transmit family resemblance and family traits from parent to child. The crossing of races and the blending of families modify this in a measure, but the law that like produces like holds good in both the animal and the vegetable kingdoms. The Jews are the world's great object lesson as to the effect of the maintenance of racial purity. Centuries of oppression and being scattered, countryless, the earth over has been powerless to overcome the racial characteristics because they have preserved their racial purity and refused to intermarry with other races. Thus has the character of Abraham been handed down to the Jew of to-day, and there exists nowhere, in no country, taking them as a whole, a people that equals them in intelligence, character and physical perfection.

"But," you say, "how can I be well born?" You can not alter your own state, but a knowledge of eugenics by the people now living might give to children of the future the priceless gift of being well born. What I shall say now may cause the "herd" to bellow and from behind the breastworks of a "Thus saith the Lord" hurl at me the javelins of superstitious hate and ignorance, but I shall assert five propositions that can not be successfully or truthfully denied:

First, No man who is not physically, mentally and morally sound has the right to beget a child.

Second, No woman who is not physically, mentally and morally sound has the right to become a mother.

Third, No two people who are not in good health, of sound mind and good character have the right to marry. In using the word "right" I mean in a sense of looking to the perpetuity of the race, not from a legal view.

Fourth, Cohabitation except for the purpose of propagating the species is a crime against nature.

Fifth, The marriage of people who are not temperamentally and physically adapted to each other produces more imbeciles, degenerates and criminals than any other one cause.

Some one may rear up and say that the child of parents of bad morals sometimes becomes a model for rectitude. Granted. It only emphasizes the truth that heredity reaches further back than the parent. Medical science teaches us that the child may inherit disease from a remote ancestor, the immediate ancestor having escaped. Mental traits and physical peculiarities are often traceable back to the third and fourth generation. Is it not written that "the sins of the father shall be visited on the children, even to the fourth generation?" The boy is frequently in habits and physique more like the grandfather than the father. Emerson recognized these things when he wrote: "Every child is at least a thousand years old at its birth." By some hidden rule of heredity, nature sometimes withholds certain traits or propensities for a generation or two, or even more, and then bestows the whole on the one individual, and the result is an abnormal person—either a genius or a depraved intellectuality. We see the effect of the law of heredity, but the reason thereof is beyond our ken. Just as we harness the force we call electricity and compel it to do our will, yet do not know what it is. We know that we transmit to our children our physical likeness, our mental traits and our good or bad character, yet we do not know why it is so. We know that the grain of wheat will grow and produce similar grains of wheat, yet we can not tell why.

You don't sow oats and expect to reap a crop of clover, nor plant an acorn and expect to grow a pine. Yet we pretend to expect diseased parents to produce healthy offspring; pretend to expect moral degenerates to give to the world children of good character; pretend to believe that from ill-mated marriage will come children mentally and physically perfect. That the race has not become extinct is due solely to the one fact that nature is always striving to right the wrongs that we do. There is constantly in all nature a struggle to "return to type." It is this fundamental law that has prevented the race from destroying itself.

But the alarming conditions are attracting the attention of the thinkers of the land, and a crusade has started in the interest of the child yet to be born. The demand is to be made that children of the future shall have the right to be well born. It is a question of the preservation of the human race, and it will take precedence over all other questions. The whole social fabric may have to be built anew, and all our present ideas re-formed, but it will force itself to the fore.

Don't get your brickbat yet. I haven't said all that I want to on the subject. I didn't have the space. I may take the subject up on the installment plan and go into it exhaustively. In the meantime, what do you think about it? I would like to know. By the way, some weeks ago the editor called upon you to furnish him a definition of the word "eugenics." You might have thought that he was just seeking to test your knowledge, but he wasn't. Honestly, he wanted to know. I know that he did, for he asked me and I couldn't tell him. Some of you send in the definition. Not the dictionary kind, but your own.

Who is Your Choice for the Various County Offices?

Believing that the COURIER subscription list contains most of the representative, thoughtful and progressive citizens of Morgan county, and further believing that the weight of their opinion will have much to do in determining who will be the nominees of the primary of next August, the COURIER has decided to conduct a "Straw Election" to obtain the consensus of opinion of our subscribers as to whom should be nominated.

The COURIER has no choice between the aspirants for county nominations. It will be absolutely neutral in these races, treating each with absolute fairness. But in common with all good citizens it hopes that the best men will be selected for all the offices.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce CHARLES D. ARNETT,
of West Liberty, as a candidate for the nomination for State Senator from the 34th Senatorial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

House Burned.

A small tenant home belonging to J. R. Kendall, standing just back of Mrs. Emma C. Salver's and occupied by Sam Wadkins, was burned early yesterday morning. The contents were all saved.

An old farmer was skeptical as to whether people who were miles apart could really talk to each other over a telephone wire. One day a neighbor persuaded the farmer to call up his wife as a little surprise.

He put the receiver to his ear, and shouted: "Hello, Jane."

Just then a flash of lightning caused by the heat of the summer day struck the wire, and he fell sprawling to the floor. The neighbor was chagrined that the old man should meet with such an accident on his first trial of a telephone, and assured him that such a thing would not happen in case of storms. But he would not try again. He rose to his feet, and shaking his head knowingly, said:

"It's wonderful, that was Jane, all right.—Southwestern Telephone News."

Woman Finally Recovers From Nervous Breakdown

Impoverished nerves destroy many people before their time. Often before a sufferer realizes what the trouble is, he is on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. It is of the utmost importance to keep your nervous system in good condition, as the nerves are the source of all bodily power. Mrs. Anna Kounz, 211 Mechanic St., Pueblo, Colo., says:

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration; I was unable to do any house work and doctors failed to help me. Remedies I tried from druggists did not do me a particle of good. A neighbor told my husband about and he procured a bottle. After the first few doses I showed a marked improvement and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured. I have been perfectly well for years and cannot praise Dr. Miles' Nervine too highly."

If you are troubled with loss of appetite, poor digestion, weakness, inability to sleep; if you are in a general run down condition and unable to bear your part of the daily grind of life, you need something to strengthen your nerves. You may not realize what is the matter with you, but that is no reason why you should delay treatment.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

has proven its value in nervous disorders for thirty years, and merits a trial, no matter how many other remedies have failed to help you. Sold by all druggists. If first bottle fails to benefit your money is returned. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

8100 REWARD, 8100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
